

I hope they never allow the telemarketers to get started calling again. I was thinking of having my phone disconnected before we were given the FCC number to call to stop the telemarketing calls. Sometimes when I would come home from work, I would have 20 or more unavailable calls on my caller Id. I think that would qualify as harassment. My dog probably think so too, because he would hear the calls all day long. Blessed Peace!